NEWARK HIGH SCHOOL

Volume 72

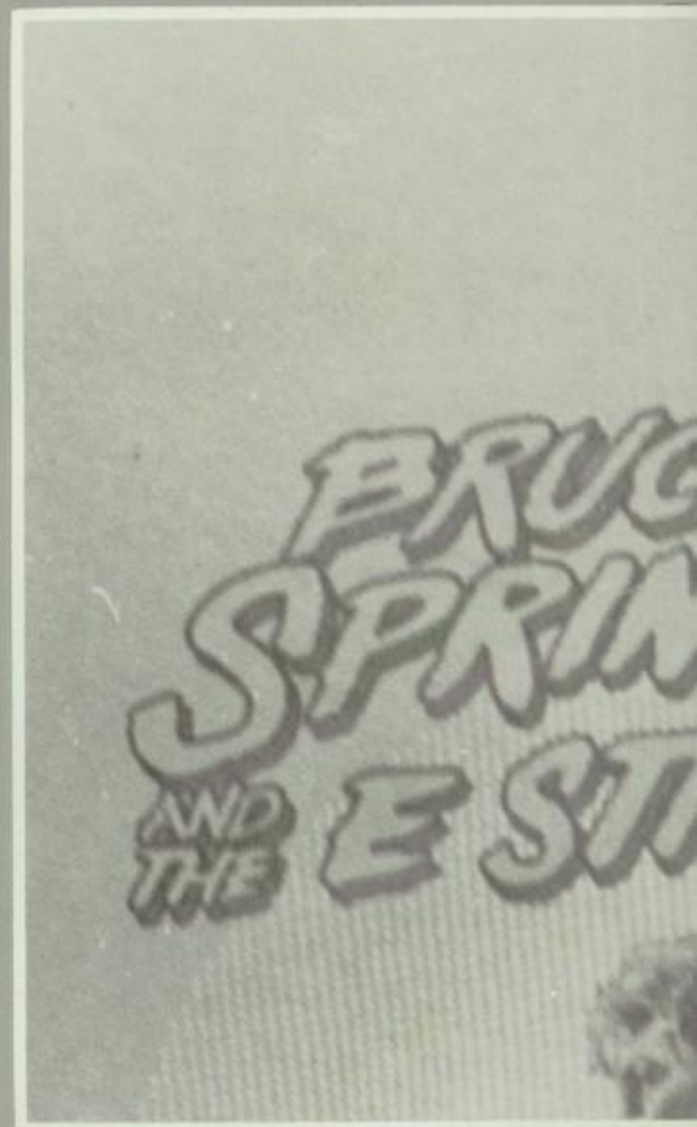

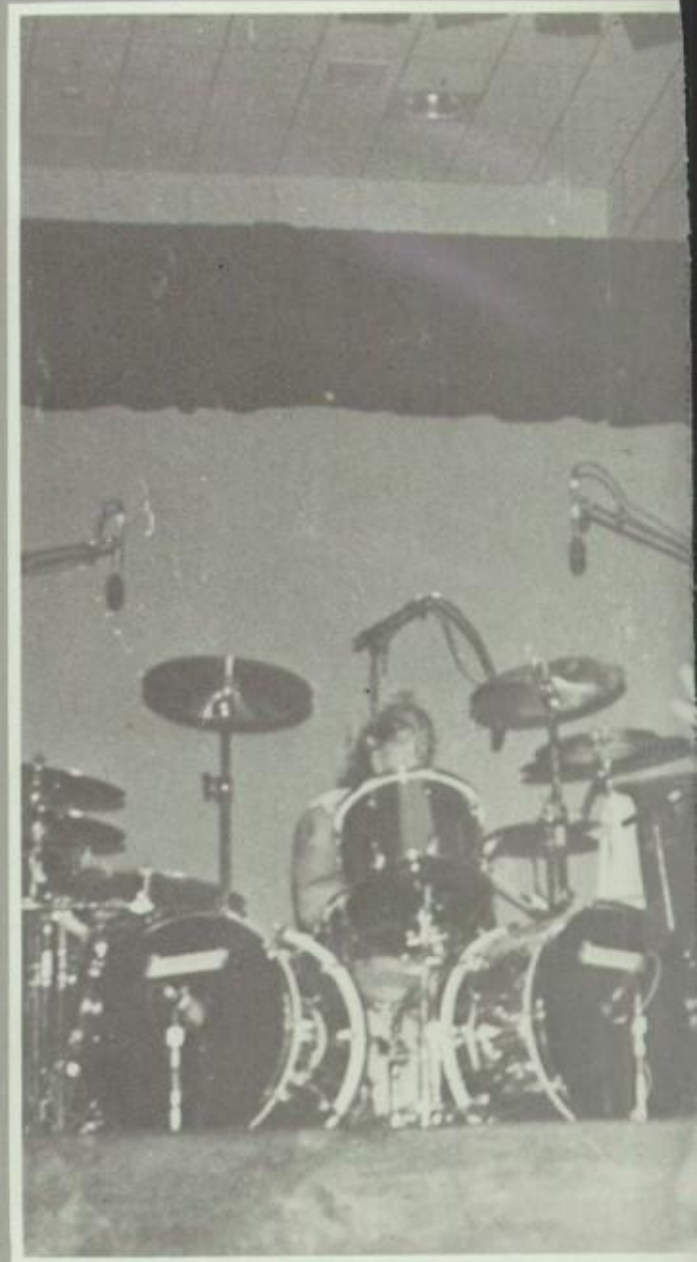

Newark, Ohio 43055

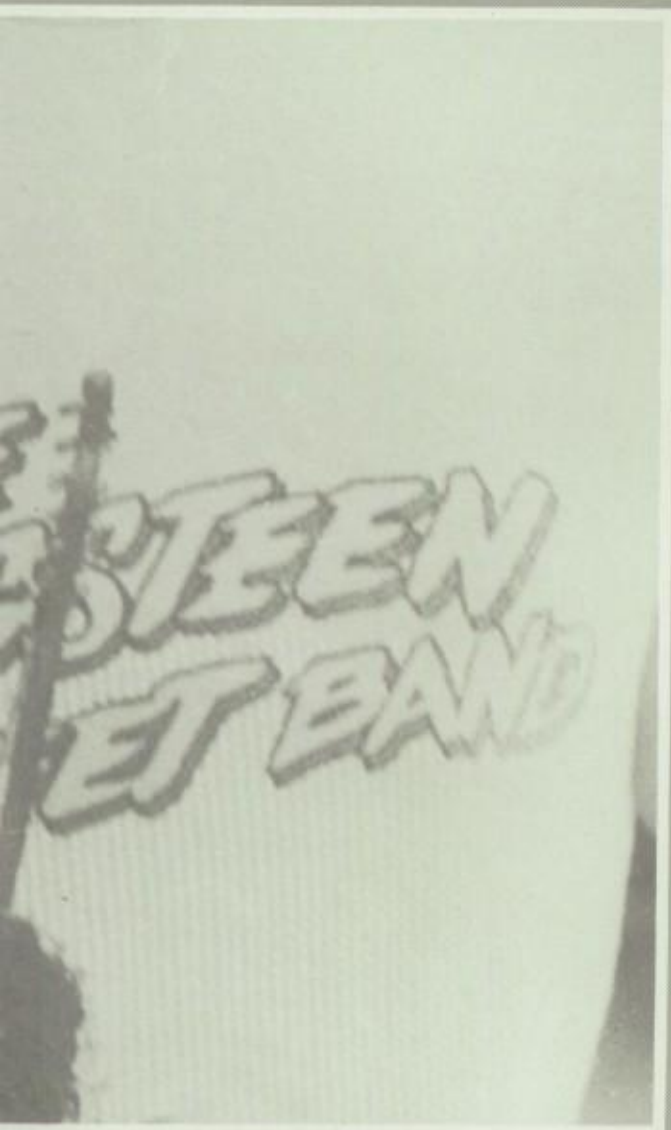

Newark High School was a diversity of images. To sophomores, it meant "the big time." To juniors, it was a step-up the ladder. To seniors, it meant finally being on top. To teachers, it was new students with new experiences, and to administrators and deans, it meant coping with 1700 students and 120 faculty and staff members. To the community at times, NHS was something of which they could be proud. To find the common denominator shared by all these individuals was a difficult task. The 1982 Reveille believed the common denominator was music — music that affects all both in school and out of school.

In school, the effect of music through specialized courses and activities was obvious. Last year, eleven musical courses were offered, suiting every taste. These courses included orchestra, band, and various choral classes. All offered every student an opportunity to pursue musical interests. Branching out from these courses were many related activities involving hundreds of students.

Appearing at the New Ohio Center, Detroit's own Ted Nugent rocks the audience with his hit songs.
The NHS Pep Band revs up a capacity crowd at the Canton McKinley game.
Still popular with NHS fans, Bruce Springsteen continues his rock legacy.
The legendary Jimi Hendrix lives for fans who rediscovered him in 1981.

Band, one such activity, involved the entire school and community. The participating students, supportive community, faculty and fellow students were all involved. Many were present at Newark's band contest in November 1981. Many were additionally present at other contests including state competition where Newark brought home an excellent rating.

Aside from contests, the band also assumed responsibility for spirit raising. At sporting events, spirits soared at the sound of the NHS fight song. At Newark's dazzling 31-27 come-from-behind victory over COL rival Zanesville in October 1981, the band prevailed too. Through below freezing temperatures, band members aided frustrated football players and dedicated fans by musically raising their spirits.

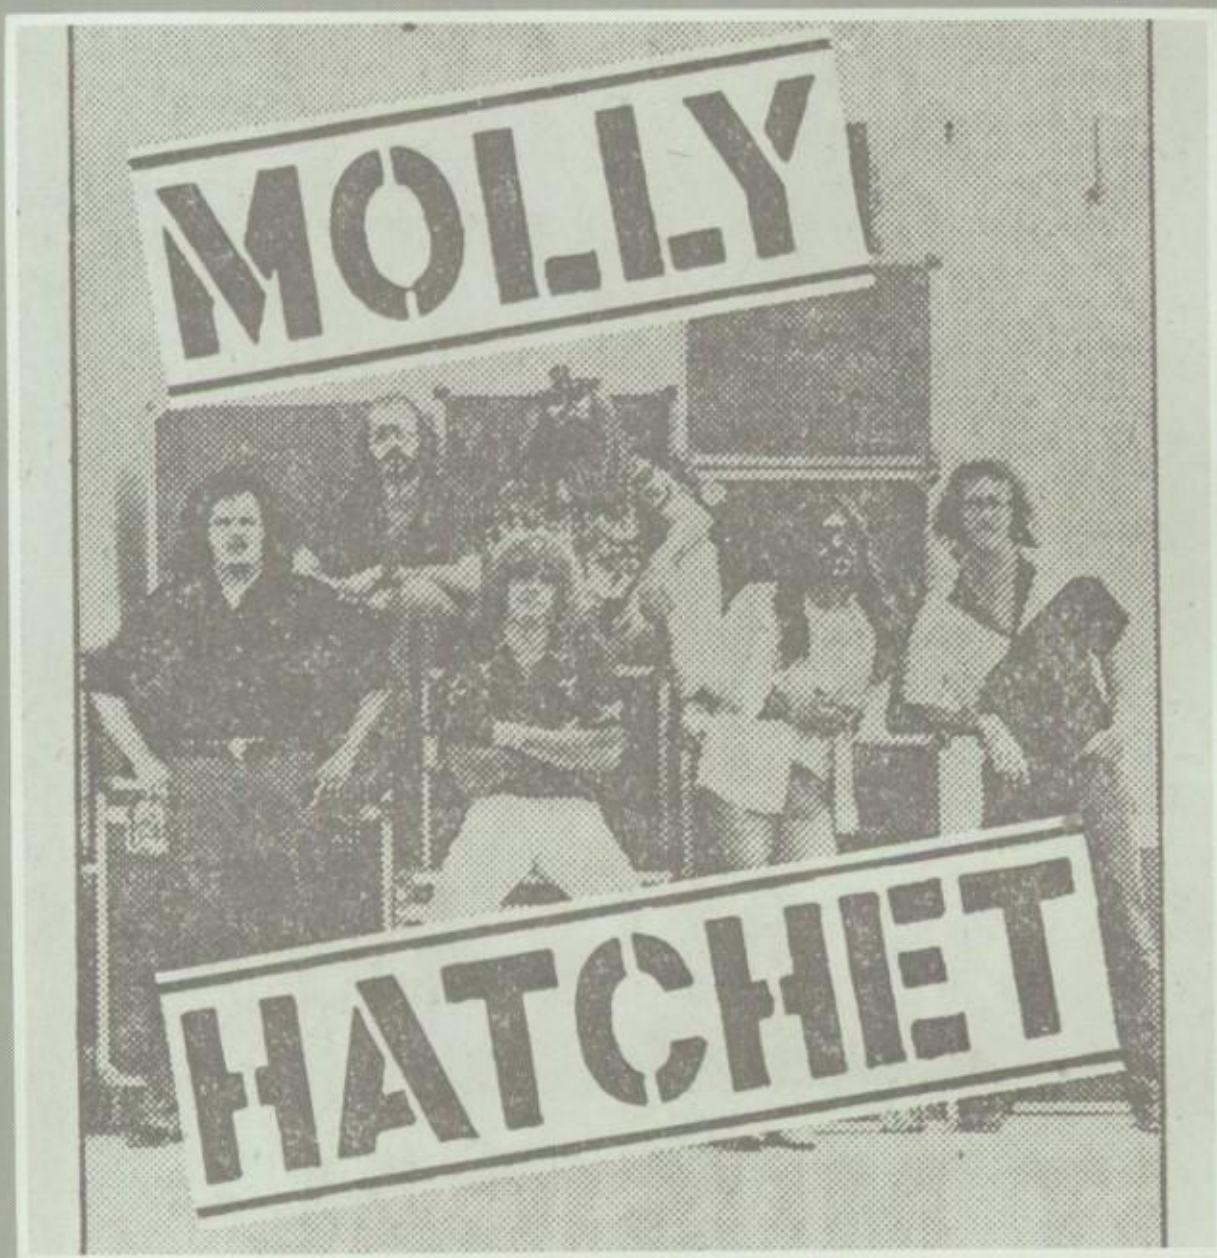

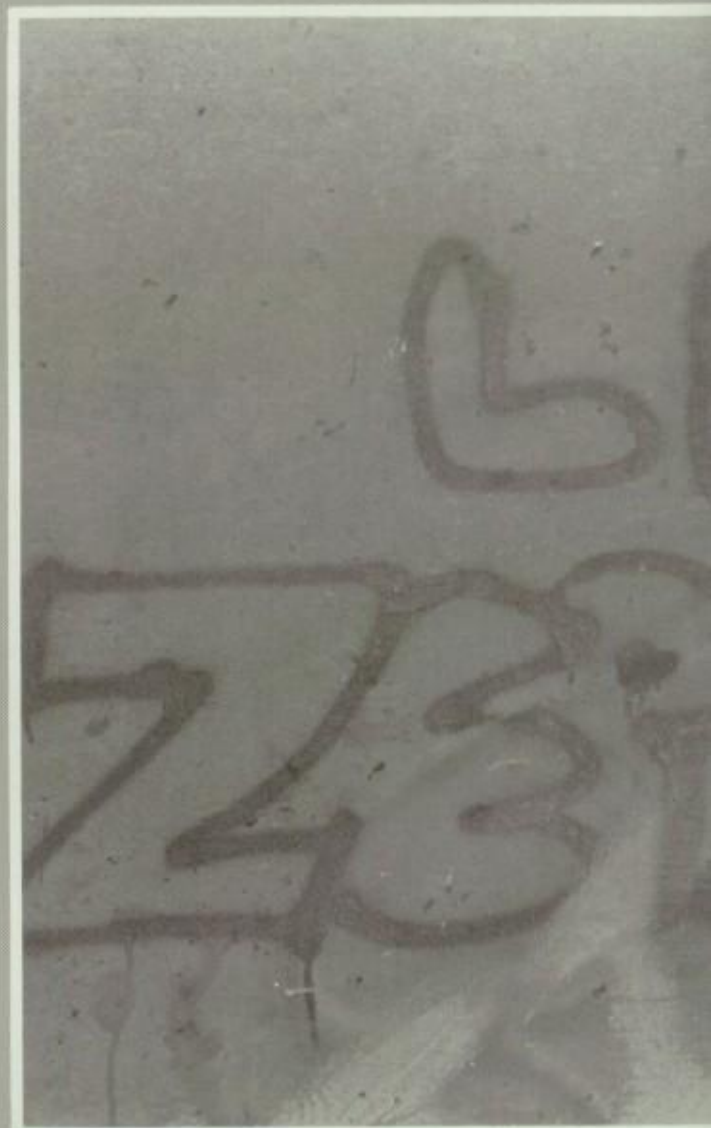

Besides the marching band, music was the top feature of choral groups. Included in these groups were Men's Chorus, Women's Glee, Swing Choir and the Concert Choir. The students, faculty, and community again provided support for the choral department by attending fall, Christmas and spring concerts.

Undoubtedly, however, controversy sometimes arose. In September 1981, student use of portable radios on campus was banned. While many students were upset, most, including faculty, were pleased with quieter parties, classrooms and lunchrooms.

Although radios no longer filled the school with music, outside of school students continued to listen to music, especially to rock. A pleasant surprise to Newark rockers came when WNKO, a local classical music station, abruptly changed its format to rock music. KO-102 became Newark's first rock station in June 1981.

One other Central Ohio rock station, however, proved to be tops. NHS's students newspaper The Compendium conducted a musical survey in the early fall. The results showed Q-FM-96, "Ohio's Best Rock," to be worthy of its claim. Seventy-three percent of the NHS radio audience preferred the "Q" to all other radio stations.

Musical taste was strongly in favor of rock. The Bull's Eye Saloon decided to profit from this fact. During the year, Sunday nights became teen nights at this local establishment. Many students attended the weekly live rock shows. A favorite feature was Shadow, made up of NHS graduates.

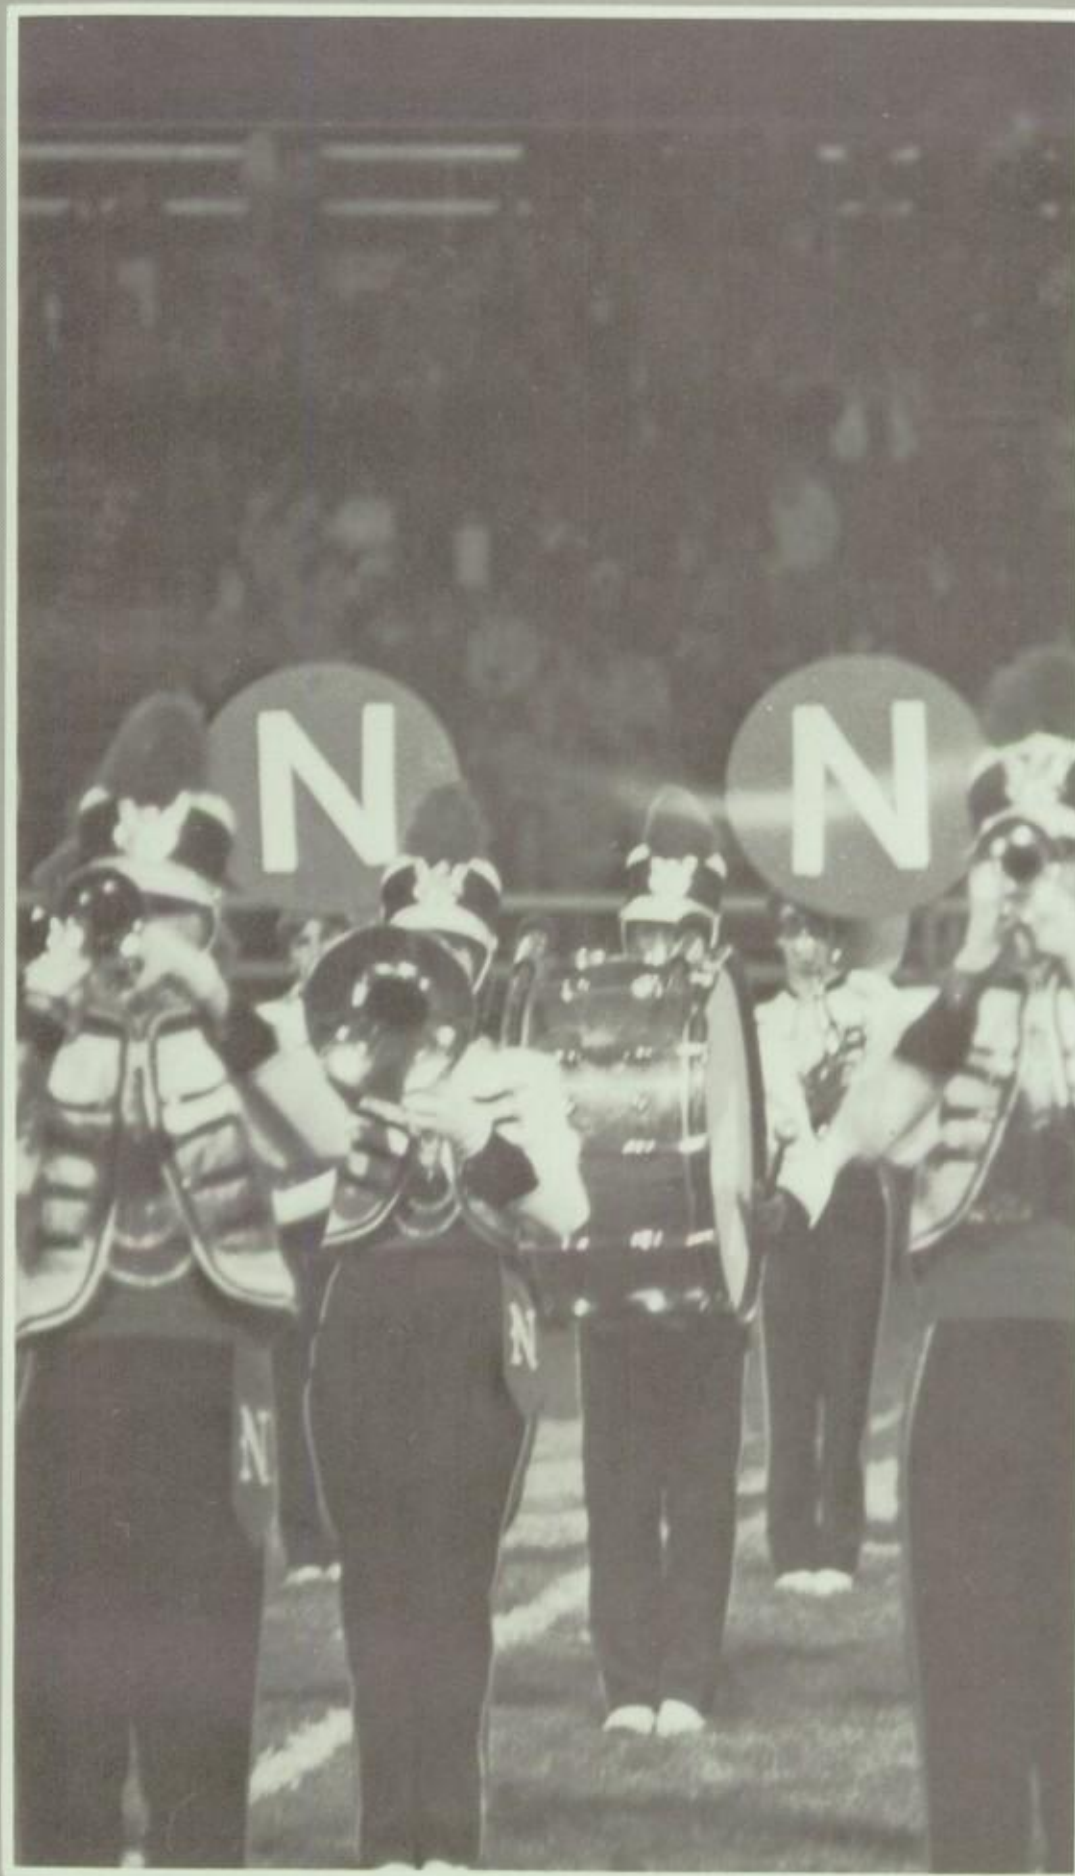

Local band Trymer entertains the NHS Homecoming Dance crowd in October.

The NHS Band performs at halftime for the fans at White Field.

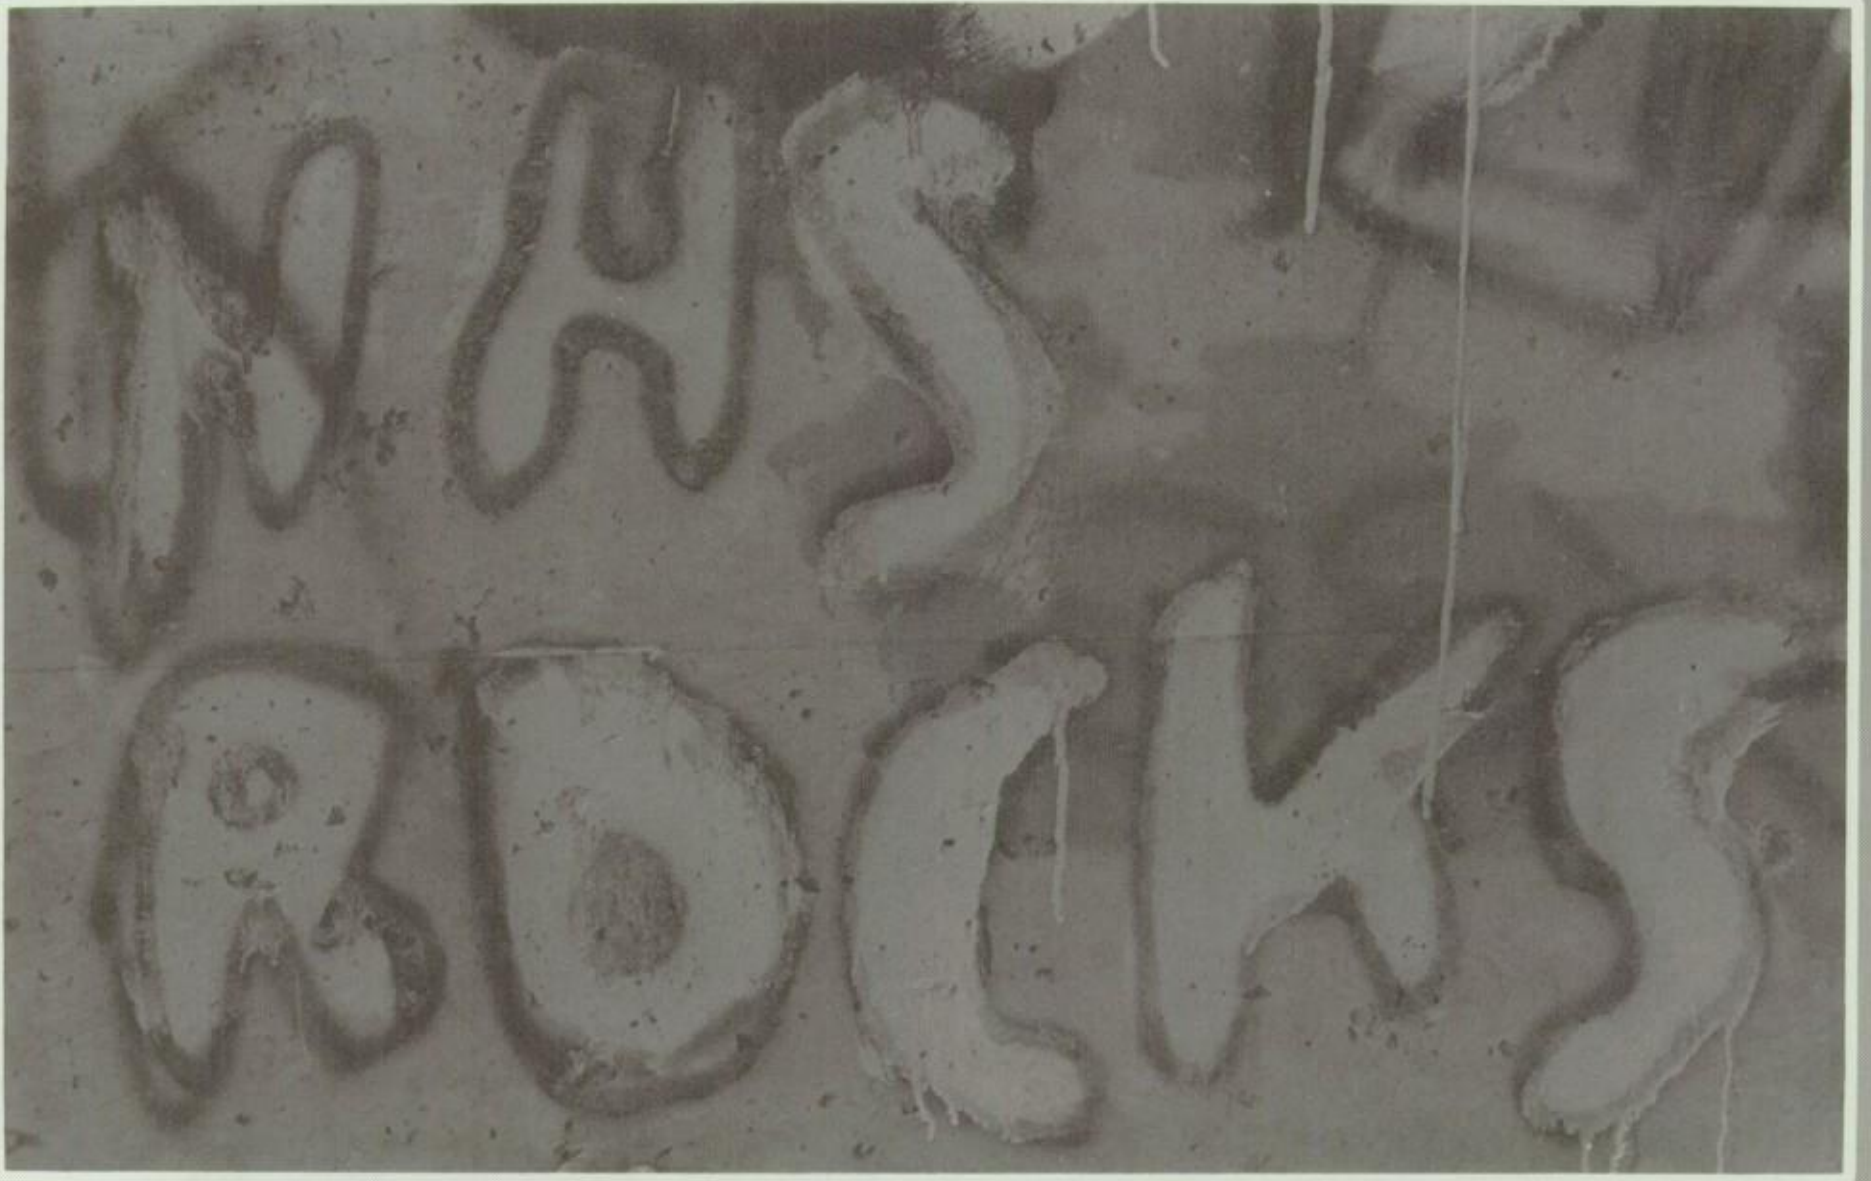

Led Zeppelin rockers show their support by spray painting the wooden wall on Granville Road during the construction of the flood drainage ditch.

Molly Hatchet appears at the Ohio Center in their Central Ohio February visit.

Local talent, incidentally, was only secondary to the concert scene. The concert shaking Ohio, of course, was the late November visit of the Rolling Stones to Cleveland's Richfield Coliseum. Other crowd pleasers in the Columbus area included The Kinks, "The Motor City Madman" Ted Nugent, Blue Oyster Cult, the J. Geils Band, and UFO. Central Ohio rock fans saw the reopening of the Ohio State Fairgrounds Coliseum as a concert facility for heavy metal favorite Black Sabbath. On the other hand, Legend Valley was restricted to strictly country-western shows, such as the concert featuring Charlie Daniels.

Conclusively Newark High School was filled with musical images. In many ways music became a part of student, faculty and community life and played a role in sports and activities.

The staff at NHS is unique, easily identified as classical. Classical in more than just the musical sense. The quality most distinctive is that of uniqueness or originality. Concern for the student is first. This is evident as Newark High School is highly accredited, as well as respected. Teachers, deans, guidance counselors, principals and other staff members all aid in providing the best educational opportunities for students. Concerned about preparations for college, the staff thought it best to remove senior exemption privileges. Although this decision was and is quite unpopular with students, it was developed for better preparation for after high school. The staff also gives any student the opportunity for a unique experience in dealing with younger children. Many students take advantage of the REE program, which allows students to be camp counselors at a one week sixth grade camp at Camp Ohio in the spring. In the spring, additionally, is ten days of rest and relaxation known as spring break. Larry Roberts, vice-principal, aided by International Field Studies, can take the relaxation time and combine it with an educational experience and create a very enjoyable vacation on Andres Island in the Bahamas. Exploring surrounding waters and reefs are only part of what students and staff alike participate in. IFS also provides trips to other places including Carter Caves, Kentucky. Staff concern and aid continue into student problems. Dealing with NHS's drug and alcohol problems is one case where the staff aided. Rather than expelling a student for breaking drug and alcohol related rules, an alternate plan, involving counseling, was devised. The most outstanding staff attribute, though, is simply the quality education provided to every student, regardless of post graduation plans. The staff concerning music, however, is not so easily defined. Regarding classical music, some staff fit the category, while others prefer rock, country, jazz or some other type. If it not be musically, all staff members are considered classical in the sense of excellence.

"NHS Rocks!" A familiar phrase at the high school and true. Rock is a very big part of student life. In early December the French Travel Club helped rock the high school as they presented Led Zeppelin's classic rock film, "The Song Remains the Same." Hundreds of students paid the two dollar admission price to see the movie, although technical difficulties prevented a scheduled second showing. Students themselves show the prominence of rock also through individual efforts. Numerous lockers are decorated with pictures and posters of Van Halen, Rush, and Michael Stanley. T-shirts of Def Leopard, AC/DC, Journey, and many other bands additionally show rock's student influence at NHS. Groups like Rush, Journey, and other current groups all have influence, but how about older, forgotten rock? It has made a re entry into the rock scene. Jimi Hendrix in 1968 released "The Jimi Hendrix Experience." It was enjoyed by a few, but scoffed at by many. Today, it and other Hendrix tunes have become highly regarded and appreciated. Songs like "All Along the Watchtower" and "Hey, Joe" have gained much airplay time, gaining the late Hendrix renewed popularity. Hendrix, however, is not alone. The dead or alive Jim Morrison has added amazingly to the already overwhelming success of his Doors. Success grows, in addition to the puzzling myth of Morrison's questionable death. Softer rock, old or new, also is quite popular. Olivia Newton John, Air Supply, REO Speedwagon all are popular softer rock sounds. Clearly, music rocks NHS, but it also rocked in another way. Homecoming balloting caused a stir with many students as they believed they should be more involved in the nomination process. The senior class rocked the administration boat over the question of senior privileges. It involved the disappointing loss of senior exemption from exams. Music and events together make true the statement that NHS rocks!

Beth Firchau said, "We are working for our class so it can be a better class, and we need your support." Another council member said, "It takes a lot of time but it's worth it."

The homecoming floor and the junior-senior prom were two activities which occupied the attention of the council. The President commented on the class council's job by saying, "This is a hard working class. They're willing to do their work . . . to do their share."

Aside from the obvious, that senior pictures are in color this year, the Reveille cannot take full credit for them. A good portion of the credit goes to the efforts and contributions of the Senior Class Council, the Senior Class officers, and the senior class itself.

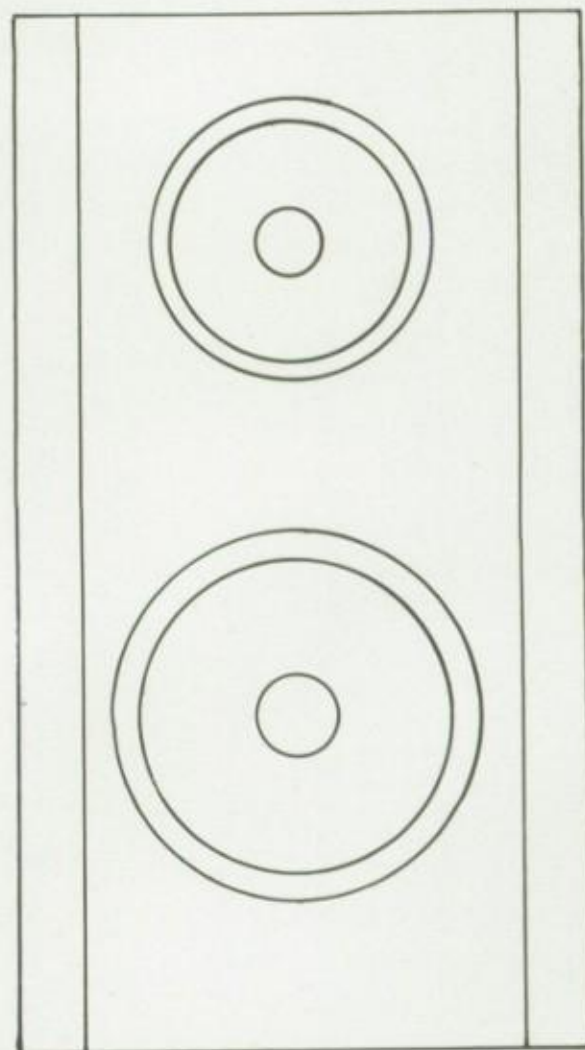

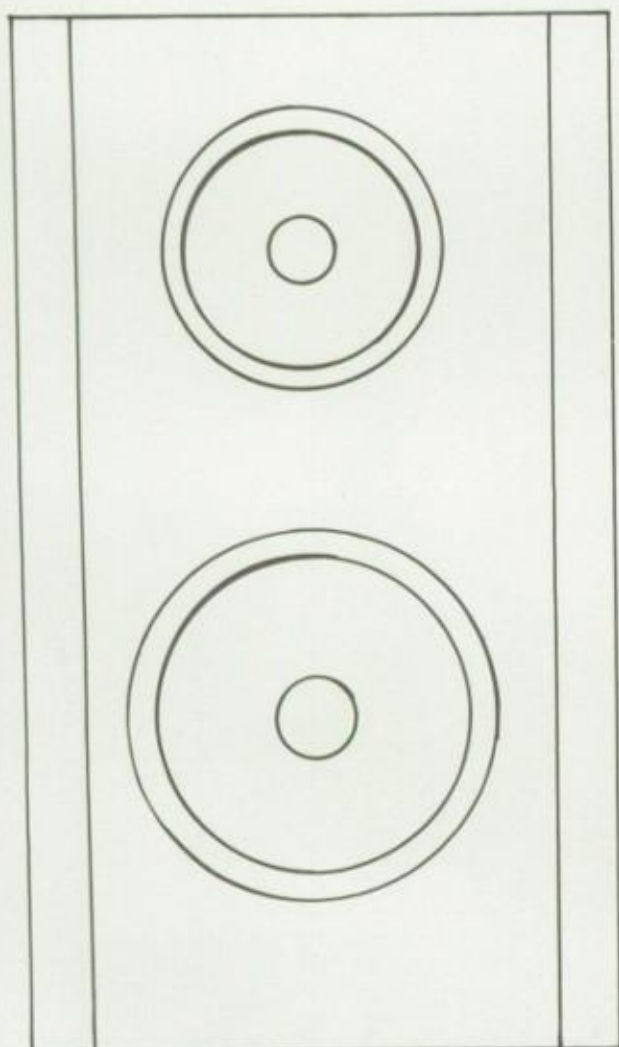

Due to the overwhelming popularity of color senior pictures, declared by a democratic vote when seniors were juniors, the Senior Class Council elected to take responsibility for funding the project. By providing the Reveille with approximately $2,400.00, the color pictures were possible. Thanks, seniors!

JIMMY ALLEN RETIRES

Mr. James Rollin Allen retired this past spring after serving as Athletic Director for the Newark City Schools. Before becoming Athletic Director, Mr. Allen had a distinguished career in high school and college sports. In high school, he played football for four years, received three letters and was chosen as an All-Ohio player. He played basketball for four years, earned two letters and was also named an All-Ohio player. He also received two letters in baseball and track.

While in college, he played football for two years, received two letters and was an All-Ohio Honorable Mention. In basketball he played two years, received two letters and was again chosen an All-Ohio Honorable Mention player. He also lettered in baseball for one year. To salute him is a difficult task. On the next page, the Reveille asked his associates to reflect upon his career:

Mr. Allen handles the sports broadcasts for WCLT radio.
This publicity photo was taken of Mr. Allen at some time in the past.

For thirty years Jim Allen lived Newark School athletics, physical education, and related activities. He often did the job of several people and maintained a balanced budget for important programs for Newark students. His untiring efforts will be sorely missed. — William L. Bainbridge

Jim is an excellent teacher, coach and athletic administrator. His proficiency in these areas extends over a thirty year period. His influence extends beyond the Newark-Licking County area. He has been a driving force in the state and national athletic associations. He is a special person who has touched many people. — Gary Walters

I have worked for Jim for five years as head football coach. He has been a great help to me both personally and professionally. Jim has worked very hard for a great number of years to develop Newark athletics into the successful overall program that it is. I have only one program to worry about. Jim has to worry about them all. We often disagree on things, but he is always honest and upfront in his dealings. I know that Jim's primary concern is, and has always been, that the students of Newark High School have the best possible athletic program that can be provided. — Bill Biggers

I first met Jimmy Allen in 1964 while he was coaching football at Newark High School, and I was playing at Newark Catholic High School. He was a great supporter of athletics and helped all athletes towards higher education. He was always very positive and supportive in this area. He is a great teacher because he is fair and yet firm. He is well-organized, a family-oriented man, honest and most importantly, an NHS booster in every way conceivable. I do not think I could have survived in this job without his help. — John Brown

Mr. Allen is one of the easiest men to work for I have known. He is kind, considerate and does not play favorites in any of his dealings. One rule applies to all. He loves his job and no task is too small or too great. What is good for the program always comes first in his thinking. He gives of himself selflessly. To sum it all up . . . "He is one grand guy." — Helen Saunders

A visitor to see Mr. Allen was former Ohio State University coach Woody Hayes.

Coach Bill Biggers stated, "We entered the season with very little game experience; the two early season losses seemed to increase determination rather than effect our spirit." This was evident in the following six games as Newark walked away with no losses; even Zanesville was defeated 31-27. However, the 'Cars lost their final game against Lancaster which was unfortunately needed for the COL championship — final score 14-28. The season was ended with a record of 7-3.

The high spirited reserve 'Cats spend the summer preparing for the upcoming games. It's common to hear "good job" after a rough game. Seconds before a spectacular pass play that led to another Neward victory, Patrick Joseph Dyar holds Lancaster to short yardage.

The reserve 'Cats did exceptionally well in terms of experience and recognition by psyching out their opponents. Coach Dan Walters said the season went "very well." Indeed, the season did go well. The incredible defense was not scored upon in seven out of eight games. The highest scoring game was against arch-rival Zanesville with a 34-0 victory. Junior Magnus Sublett stated, "Our most exciting game was against Columbus DeSales when David Barrett kicked a thirty yard field goal in the last fifteen seconds of the game and gave us the win over DeSales 3-0."

NEW COACH VOLLEYS TEAM INTO ACTION

The varsity Lady 'Cats demonstrated their winning efforts by completing the season with a record 17-8 season and a 3-1 record in the COL. Coach Montavon stated, "Our season indicated we had more ups than we had downs. I believe the season went very well." Sherry Phillips received the most improved award as she demonstrated her skills at the Bishop Hartley game. Coach Montavon had this to say about her first year of coaching, "It was a learning experience for the girls. I feel it was a pleasant and rewarding experience for me."

The reserve Lady 'Cats spiked their opponents with great determination by completing a 12-4 season record. Sophomore Joette Greenstein said, "The season was successful because we all got along and helped one another to improve. The team gained a lot of experience over the season and is looking forward to next year." The promising season should lead to another great year in the future.

The 'Cats had a winning season because better quality golfers tried out for the team. Sophomore Jeff Hull came over from Newark Catholic to become the number one golfer with his season average of forty. Senior Mark Hayden was awarded most improved golfer. The 'Cats barely missed going to districts by only three strokes, while Jeff Hull went to districts but missed qualifying for the state competition. Coach Carl McKinney was very pleased with the season record of sixteen wins and ten losses and is looking forward to another winning season next year.

"We had some very tough competition this year and still had a winning season, said Mrs. Verdon, the coach of the tennis team. Eleven wins and eight losses is definitely not a smashing season, but it was certainly no fault of sophomore Megan Reese, who worked her way to the districts in the singles division while Theresa Lynn Fightmaster and Heather Richardson fought their way to districts in the doubles division. Fortunately, this was not the only victory for Heather as she was voted Most Valuable Player by the other team members. Julie Frasher was voted the Most Improved Player by the other team members. In the words of the coach, "The team was stronger and had more experience than the team last year. I am very proud of them."

The 1981 cross-country season was a rebuilding year. The 'Cars started their season defeating Zanesville. Larry E. Erickson, all-district runner, was the only returning letterman from 1980.

The team focused on individual performance and improvement. Erickson was Newark's leading runner enjoying such successes as a fourth place finish in the Malone College Invitational, second place in the COL, third place in the districts, and thirty-ninth place in the state meet.

All members of the squad showed improvement as the year went on, but sophomore Doug Burchard showed great potential taking all-COL honors and qualifying for the central district meet.

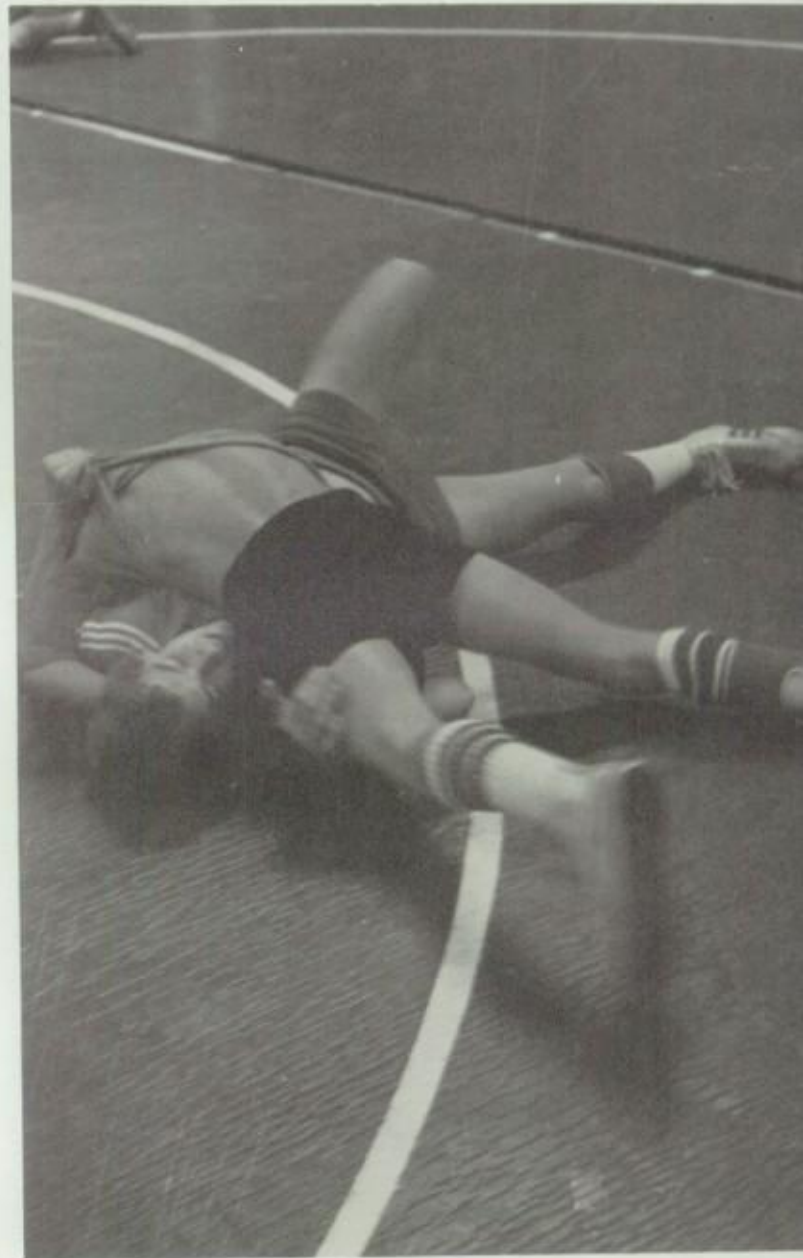

Coach Steve Wilkin stated, "With five sophomores on this year's team, the future looks encouraging for Newark cross-country." He is looking forward to a successful 1982 season.

Coach Gary Walters stated, "Considering the schedule, which was one of the most difficult in NHS history, it was an enormously successful season." The success was mainly attributed to a well-balanced team, great athletic ability and superior senior leadership. Mike Giomi's breaking of the career scoring record was one of the many highlights of the season. The coach added, "It was a most enjoyable season highlighted by our wins over Canton McKinley, Worthington, and an outright COL championship." Newark's tournament action will be covered in the supplement.

The Reserve team finished the season with a record of 12-8. The bright spot in the record was that they won the last six of their seven games. In addition, they also had the best record with 5-1 to capture the COL lead. Coach Tom Young felt that the team showed great improvement during the season, and he is expecting many of his sophomores to contribute to next year's varsity squad.

The NHS Aqua-Cats completed a fairly successful season, although the team scores were not as good as individual scores for most swim team members. First year diver Wendy Pritchard stated, "I felt I improved as an individual as many others on the team did, but due to the size of the team we could not overpower other teams." Overall, the team put out its best effort in team and individual events.

A school would not be complete without this particular aspect of student life, activities, as it would not be complete without any already discussed. For some, it enhances an already loaded schedule, while for others, it gives them a means of pursuing specific interest or desire. For all, though, it would be said school activities jazz up an otherwise routine school life. Activities range from strictly career preparation to strictly entertainment, with many falling in between. Career-minded activities or organizations are numerous. One example is the COE Club. Designed to allow students to attend half a day of school, then allowing the student to work a particular job, it best benefits the non-college bound student. Others include accounting block, steno block and many home economics programs. Those activities strictly for fun have no real objective other than to just have a good time. Ski Club, for example, meets five times, once a week for five consecutive weeks during the winter. For a discount rate, beginning and expert skiers travel to the Clear Fork ski slopes for an evening of skiing and ski instruction. It's entertainment and a bit of learning all at the same time. Lastly are the activities which have educational qualities, which actually all activities do have, and are also for enjoyment. Drama Club gives prospective actors and actresses an opportunity to become more experienced through performances and such. While learning, though the participants enjoy themselves at something they may want to pursue, or maybe at something they just enjoy doing. Math Club and Mu Alpha Theta are other activities which students can learn and enjoy at the same time. Others include Wildcatettes, Debate and The Compendium. Numerous activities could be added to any of these lists. NHS is fortunate to have a very full list of a wide variety of activities to "jazz" up student life. A student must simply participate to take advantage of any of these.

The Pep Band, with director Randall Lamb, the band officers, and the band members met about two hours each week to practice. The two separate bands, each with thirty-five members, performed at all NHS home basketball games to entertain the crowd and support the team. Member Brady McPeek likes "performing before large crowds" and thinks "the band greatly adds to the spirit and enthusiasm of games." Lisa Gelfer adds, "It's fun to watch the crowd's reaction to the band, we try to get them excited."

The National Art Honor Society was made up of a select group of art students with membership based on art scholarship, character, and service. The group was headed by Jill Crowe, Marilyn Stocker, and R. James Betts and they met with their group when needed. Under their direction, members received many local awards and recognitions in addition to some of the artistic pieces being published in national magazines. Being a member of the National Art Honor Society made many art scholarships available to its members.

The Marching Band traveled over two thousand miles for performances in the 1981-82 school year. They performed at eight NHS football games, the Denison University Homecoming, at all four junior high schools, and six competitions, all under the direction of Randall Lamb. With sixty percent of the band members being first year participants, they still received eighteen first, second, and third place awards in competition action. They were state finalists for the second year in a row, one out of ten bands from Ohio, Kentucky, and Indiana to make finals at the King's Island Contest, and they outscored seventy other bands from the same region, including West Virginia. The NHS Marching Band also sponsored one of Ohio's largest and most successful band competitions with twenty-two bands participating.

Homecoming is a memory that will last a long time for Teresa Lynn Fightmaster and Thaddeus T. Winston. As a result of voting by the student body, Teresa became queen and Thad became king of homecoming activities for 1981. Both were crowned during the football game against downstate rival Portsmouth. The homecoming activities included the traditional parade to White Field, the game, special appearances by the band, Wildcatteres, Flag Corps, Rifle Corps and cheerleaders. Climax of the weekend included the Homecoming Dance. Held in the gym, the dance used an autumn theme and included the music of Trymer. For Teresa and Thad, memories for a lifetime. For many others, the weekend also proved memorable.

The Student Library Aides were a group that provided a needed service. The members gave up their study halls to help in the library. Among their duties were filing cards, processing passes, and checking out books. The only reward was an occasional appreciation party as the library could not have run smoothly without them.

Sreno Club, with advisors Katherine F. Ward and Susan Shulman, met daily with their club members. The Sreno Club participated in the National Secretary's Week. Awards won by members of the group included The official Gregg Typing and Production awards. "The most enjoyable aspect of Junior-Sreno is the fact that we are learning a great deal that will help us throughout our life, and we're having fun at the same time," says one Sreno Club member.

The Broadcasting Club held practice every other Wednesday after school and had meetings monthly. Under the direction of advisor Leland H. Hubbell, the club provided television recording, playback, and broadcast services for any school activity. Most members of the Broadcast Club enjoyed learning how a television station operates, but agree that it required many hours of work.

The Wildcatettes started the season very successfully. At the Superstar Drill Team Camp, held at Orrerbein College in August, they won one of six outstanding drill team awards over twenty-seven other teams. The girls also brought home a trophy for best home routine evaluation, an award for the most spirit, and Julia Elizabeth Ashcraft and L'Tondalaya Evans won the covered Superstar award. Shelli Hull placed third out of six-hundred girls in a drill down competition. Aside from competition, the Wildcatettes were invited to perform at Denison University's homecoming football game and parade. They also performed at the Wildcat home football games, and three away games, to such tunes as "On Broadway" and "Hir Me With Your Best Shot." The Wildcatettes also performed at five home basketball games. Being a Wildcatette may seem easy, but hours of hard work were behind every performance. Sophomore Marti J. Ritchey said about the many hours of practice, it was "definitely worth it. It gave me responsibility and self-discipline." Many agreed with Marti, but all enjoyed competing, as well as performing.

Many people thought that all the cheerleaders did was to cheer at football and basketball games, but this was only a small part of the story. Both varsity and reserve cheerleaders practiced one hour, three days a week after school. In addition, they held car washes, served as hostesses at the grand opening of State Savings: and participated in competition at the Ohio State Fair. Mrs. McDaniels felt that both squads were, "The highest skilled group of girls in a long time." Captain Katrina Anne Franklin felt that some of the things accomplished this year would be helpful in the future. Two of these accomplishments were made by Gay Garreth and Cindy Wessinger who were each recipients of the United States Cheerleader Achievement Awards. For this group, the best part of being a cheerleader was getting the chance to work with others and meet new friends.

Although they were called reserve cheerleaders, it doesn't mean they were less than varsity. "They were every bit as good as varsity but this is where they learn their a, b, c's," advisor Mrs. Jean McDaniels said. Captain Dianne R. David thought the year "went great," as they had a chance to promote school spirit and to get everyone involved. She also thought that the experience of being a cheerleader was basically one of learning how to get along with people and developing leadership. "The best part was performing," expressed Linnette Springston.

The Flag Corps had an excellent overall season. They participated in the Denison University homecoming parade and in the College Football Hall of Fame marching band competition. In the state competition finals, the Flag Corps received an excellent rating; also they gained a third place finish at the Sr. Clairsville contest. All members agreed that they all enjoyed being a part of the team, but also that the team could continue to improve.

Row I: Judith Neumann (Captain), Annette Brough (Lieutenant). Row II: Mel Pasco, Chris Isham, Jacinda Sparks, Dorinda Stone, Dawn Schimpf, Pamea Annette Farley, Theresa Copeland, Cindy Bradley.

The Rifle Corps practiced hard and achieved a great deal. After a season of rough competition, the Rifle Corps left the state finals with an excellent rating. To help in getting there though, they took third place at the Sr. Clairsville contest, second place at the Columbus Westland contest, and at the Lancaster competition, the rifles took first place. Summing up the overall opinion of the group best was Theresa Copeland. She stated, "Competing against other corps, and by winning, makes you feel like you have accomplished something."

R.E.E., the Resident Environmental Education program, allowed NHS juniors and seniors to become "parents" and "teachers" for sixth grade students from Newark's elementary schools. The NHS students involved in the program spent weeknights and weekends learning their jobs for the experience. All their efforts paid off as they became counselors to fifteen students for a five day week, twenty-four hours a day. While at Camp Ohio in March and April, all the skills which these students had mastered during their previous years of training were put to the test. As director Kathleen J. Fortman said, "All of the math, English, biology, chemistry, physics, arts, communications and industrial arts skills learned in school can now be incorporated at school camp." Three of these students served as student directors — Linda Michalek, Nancy Nutter and Gary Wigal. The OEA met the third mod of every fourth Friday of each month. Under the direction of advisor Beverly Biggers and Region IV President Gary Wigal, the group participated in numerous projects. Among their projects were ones dealing with skill contests, social activities, and leadership competitions at the state and regional levels. What many members enjoy most about the group is that they know that they are helping others, and that is one of the main objectives of OEA.

Replacing Mr. Friend as the OWE III advisor, Ronald D. Wintermute met with his group once a month. Along with President Joe Messina, Ronald D. Wintermute organized several projects last year. They included a civic project, which consisted of aiding the needy at Christmas, and an educational project, which consisted of visiting local industries.

DCT met montly during class time with coordinator Norman White. The class sponsored an employer appreciation banquet at the close of the school year. Each employer was recognized and was given a token of the student's appreciation. "This class is not just for kids who aren't interested in continuing their education, but for anyone who would like to obtain on-the-job training which may benefir them in the future," said DCT member Karrina Anne Franklin.

COE students met with their advisory committee of business men and women, and they also participated in service, social, and money-making projects. They met twice a month during COE class with advisor Beverly A. Biggers. The outstanding COE student received a certificate and was recognized at the employer banquet in the spring.

The child care training group with advisor Chris Steinbower, met twice a month to discuss the many projects they participated in. The projects included: earning money for Children's Hospital, caring for needy families, and holding a grandparent project at Athens Nursing Home. They got first hand experience in the field of teaching and learning a better understanding of children.

C.O.H.E. was a job training course for Home Economics-related jobs. These included: food service, fabric service, housekeeping and nurses' aide. Patricia E. Hedrick, teacher/coordinator, held class one and a half hours a day, and then the students worked for an average of three hours in the afternoons.

FHA/HERO met once a month. Their programs were planned around the course content of the class. They had projects such as making cupcakes to take to the LPN Nursing Home for sale, and they were responsible for a workshop in the District Fall Rally at Licking County Joint Vocational School. They attended recognition activities where students took part in five different areas. Several students worked on their degrees, which were awards an FHA/HERO member could take part in. Each class had a different set of officers and advisors were Mrs. Barbara Blatter, Chris Steinbower, Miss P. Srockberger, and Patricia E. Hedrick. One FHA/HERO member said the most enjoyable part of belonging to this group was "meeting people who you've never met before," and learning "how to work with people better."

The Future Teachers met twice a month and participated in school visitations and teacher aid programs. The club included Karolyn Burkett and Chris Sreinbower as advisors. The members had a special interest in teaching and in their club, as one member stated, "In Future Teachers you not only learn about the other people in your group, but you also learn about yourself."

Future Nurses met once about every five weeks. They visited community facilities related to nursing professions. The activities involved working with other nurses in the community in such fields as emergency areas, psychiatric nursing, and geriatrics. The group toured different hospitals and met new friends, and that was the best part according to members.

Debate, NFL, with advisor-coach Dana Herreman and NFL President Steve Crossmock, held meetings often to discuss projects and prepare for the tournaments they participated in. The Debate Club, in addition to attending about nine tournaments, participated in their own Student Congress and also held a junior high school tournament. Among their tournament honors were a first place win at the Fairmont East Tournament in Dayton, and they were finalists at the Wooster College Tournament. Most members agree that debate has developed their speaking and listening skills.

The Mathematics Club and Mu Alpha Theta held meetings once a month. The projects they participated in included a Problem Solving Contest and a candy-selling project. Their members have excelled in the Ohio Tests of Scholastic Achievement, the Ohio Mathematics League, the OCTM Statewide Mathematics Contest, and the MAA Annual High School Mathematics Contest. Included in the club are Wilbur R. Powers as adviser and Diane M. Henry as assistant adviser. Officers included: Christina Ann Smith (President), Bill Wright (Vice President), Darletta Callison (Recording Secretary), Amy Nethers (Corresponding Secretary) and Nancy Nutter (Treasurer). Mu Alpha Theta is an honorary sub-group of the Mathematics Club.

The Ski Club, advised by Robert Bevard, skied at the Clear Fork Ski Area in Central Ohio every Tuesday during the ski season. Although plagued by seemingly ritualistic injuries, enjoyment and good times were the name of the game. A limited number of skiers participated in the Metropolitan Slalom Races at the close of the winter. Newark High School's rookie ski team placed third out of twelve area high school teams.

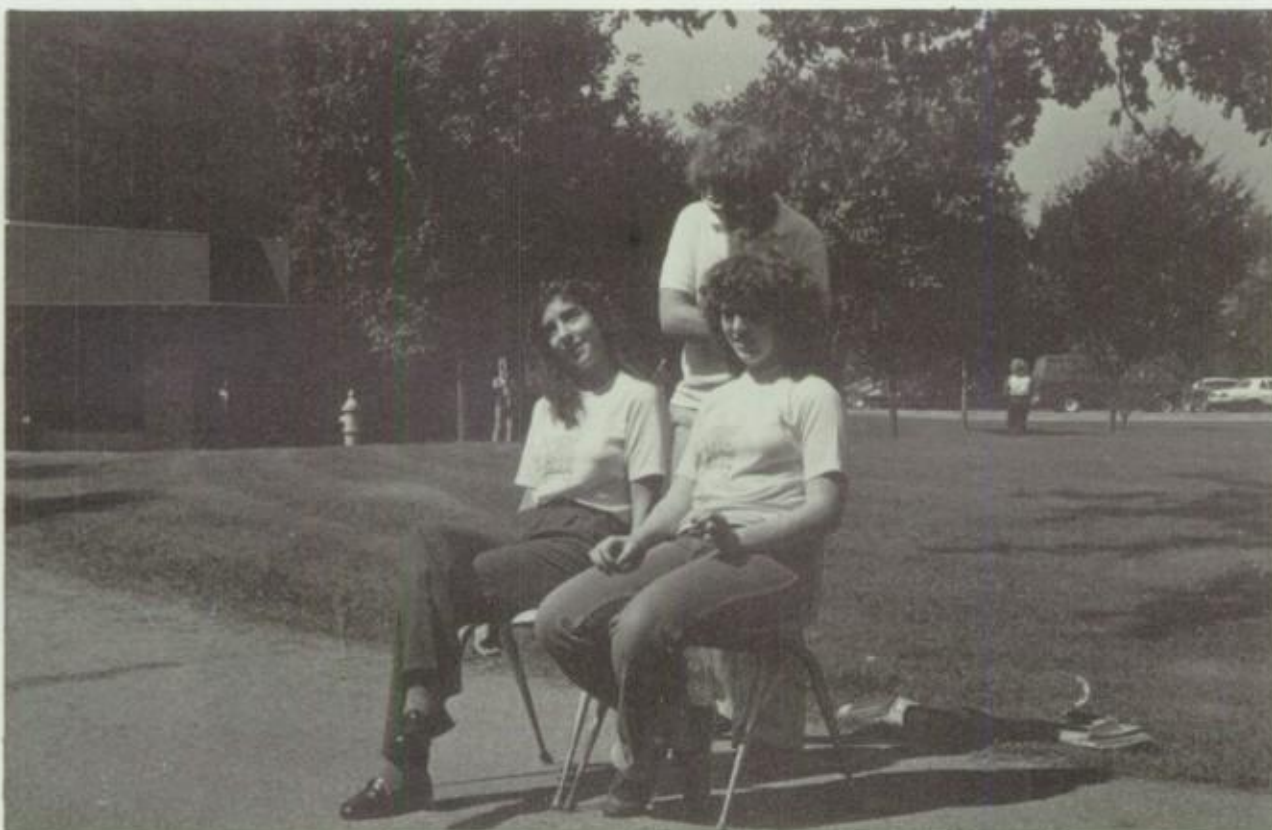

The In The Know team held meetings two to three times a week for one to two hours. They participated in quiz team competitions in Columbus and Athens. The In The Know team consisted of Steve Crossmock, Nancy Nutter, Richard Gaertner and Brad Johnston. The team unfortunately lost its first and only match on the Channel Ten show.

The Thespians were an internationally organized group of theater inspired individuals. It took long hours and hard work to become a Thespian. A person must earn ten points which is equivalent to one hundred hours of work. Before becoming a Thespian, each point is earned by working ten hours on a theater project. This includes working on crews such as set, business, lighting, costume, makeup, and props. Points were also earned by acting in school or community theater. Awards were given for additional points after the first ten earned. This group participated in conferences held in different cities around the state. The conferences are sponsored by other troupes in the state. These conferences contained workshops on acting and other theater related topics.

Adviser Marie Glotzbach, along with the club officers and members, met once a month for a Drama Club meeting. At such meetings they discussed projects such as the Teeter Totter Marathon and Slave Day. They participated in car washes, a trip to New York City, and field trips to various productions. The year's two major productions from the Drama Club were Jabberwock and Peter Pan. There was also an Acting Ensemble production, The Miracle Worker. Senior Mary Erickson doesn't seem to mind the long hours of practice, "because in the end you have created something you will never forget."

The Acting Ensemble, directed by Marie Glotzbach, met daily during eighth mod. Most of the members of the Acting Ensemble this year were international Thespian members who added to the ensemble's experience. Being in the ensemble requires hard work and dedication; one member stated that, "being in the ensemble meant working close to others and working hard together."

Enrollment in Advanced English IV was the only requirement for membership in Cup and Chaucer. The club, under the direction of Mary K. Wiechel, purchased books, tapes, records and films to be used in the study of English literature.

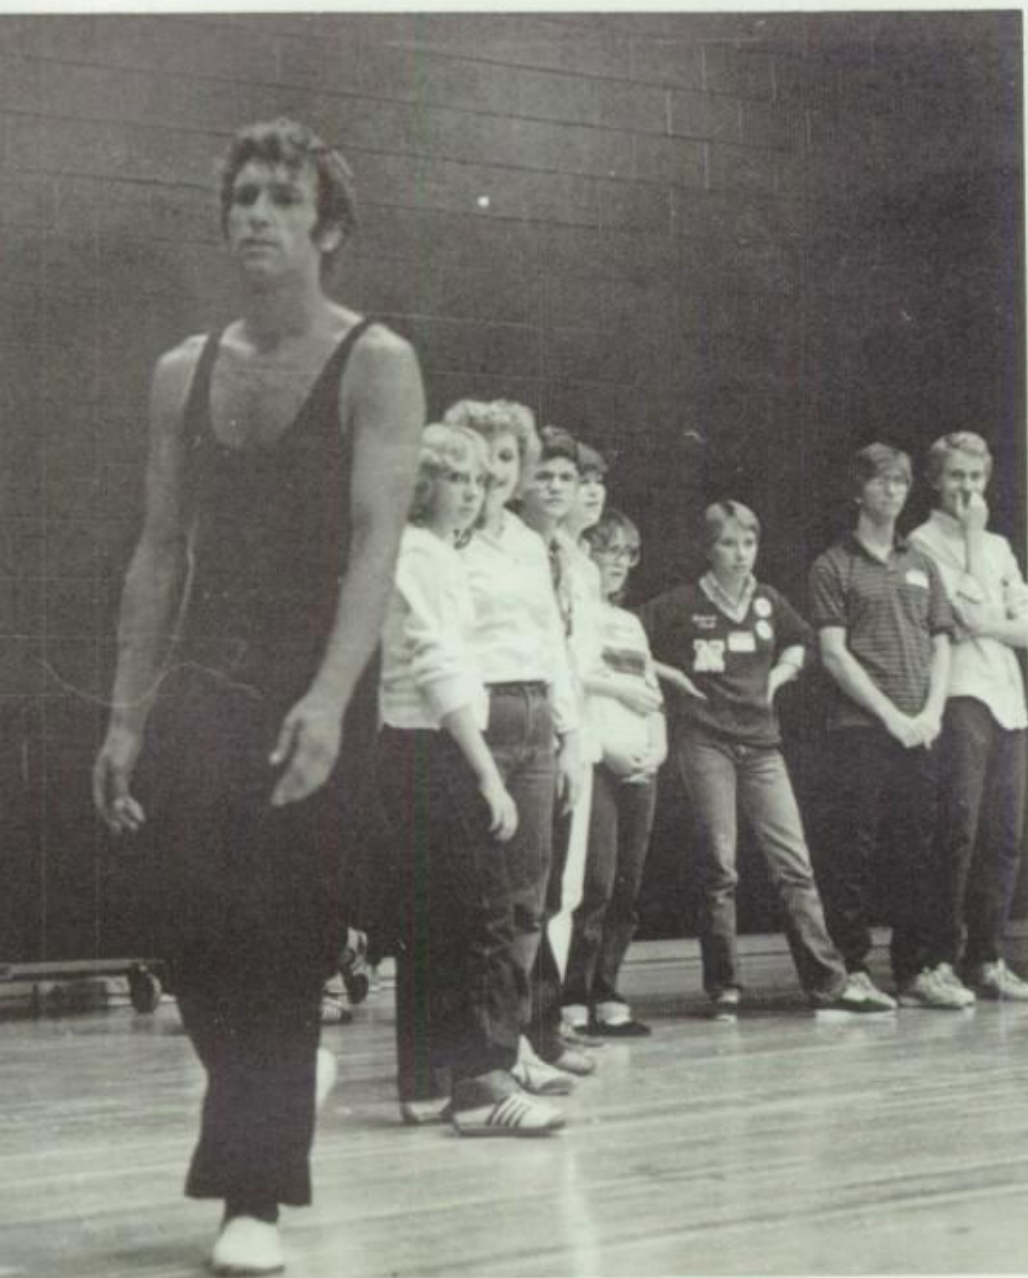

Jabberwock, written by James Thurber, was directed by Marie Glorzbach and student directed by Mary Erickson. Stage managers for the production were Randy Ware and Amy Beth Stricker. The curtain rose on November 13 and 14 for this zany, madcap comedy about life in the turn-of-the-century Columbus, Ohio, home where a young boy (James Thurber) is growing up with a houseful of strange people including his immediate family and assorted relatives, living and dead. The young Thurber was played by sophomore Kenneth Gall. Junior Toni Gallagher felt that the best part of working on this play was, "The energy of the cast astounded me."

On February 19 and 20, the NHS Drama Department presented Peter Pan. With Amy Beth Stricker in the lead role, it is the story of a "boy" who really never grows up. The play takes the audience through his adventures in Never-Never Land with such characters as Caprain Hook, played by Chuck Griffith, Wendy Darling, played by Tish Strevning, and all the little boys on Never-Never Land.

The Acting Ensemble, a select group of students, was responsible for the October 24th production of A Thurber Carnival. The drama department worked this year with a variety of plays and shows dealing with the material of Columbus native James Thurber. A Thurber Carnival is a collection of short materials from the writings of this American humorist. Mel Pasco and Lindy Stone were student directors for this production under the direction of Marie Glotzbach.

December 18th proved an unusual night for a very special group of individuals who were entertained by members of the music and drama departments as they presented their first Elizabethan Dinner. The setting was the First United Methodist Church with food prepared by the group called the Culinary Connection. Drama and music members entertained with songs, dances, juggling, acrobatics and other forms of sixteenth century entertainment. William Burckel, president of Thespians, summed up the evening by saying, "We learned a wide range of skills including how to juggle, do forms of acrobatics and how to do Elizabethan dances." According to Burckel, the success of the first dinner will probably lead to the second annual event in the near future, so if you missed the first, watch for it next year.

The Compendium staff, with the advisor Evelyn Diga, met daily in class to write the school newspaper. The Compendium consisted of many editors including: editor-in-chief Ronda Darling, managing-editor Jackie Kelly, and copy-editor Jimmy McCrillis. Staff member Tonya Flory won a feature writing award at the Journalism Association of Ohio Schools in Columbus. Editor Ronda Darling was a student representative to the council of NOSPA in 1981-82, student president of the High School Press Club of Central Ohio, and was awarded the most improved editor at the Ball State University Journalism Workshop. The Compendium newspaper won first place in the Columbia Scholastic Press Association media evaluation for 1980-81 issues and fourth place in the Northern Ohio Scholastic Press Association (NOSPA). The Compendium is a member of the Quill and Scroll, National Honorary Society for High School Journalists, Columbia Scholastic Press Association, High School Press Club of Central Ohio, Journalism Association of Ohio Schools, and Journalism Education Association.

The Reville staff, under editors Ross Plikerd and Dave Reneau, and advisor Jim Wenner, used eighth mod each day as well as numerous other mods, after school, in the evenings, and on the weekends, to produce the 1982 yearbook. This year the senior class aided the yearbook by providing approximately $2,400 to produce the color senior pictures. Joette Greenstein remarked that the most enjoyable aspect of being on the yearbook staff was that, "at the end of the year when I looked at the yearbook, I knew that I was a part of it." Kelly Warrick managed The Campus Store. Debra Dawley, Mark Oswald, and Charles Reece were part of the class for only first semester.

Every aspect of the high school has been explored so far, except the most important part. It stands alone, yet includes every part of high school life. Not only does it support Newark High School, but it is Newark High School. It, of course, is the country, or community, that surrounds us. Financial and moral support are only among the many things the community does. The yearbook itself would not be possible without the support of local businesses given through the purchase of advertising. Many of the clubs and organizations in school are possible through the voluntary sacrifice of time and effort from community members for a non-substantial reward. One example is the sports program. For nothing beyond dedication and concern, Jimmy Hull and Ernie Woolard handle the sales of season football and basketball tickets for NHS. A seemingly insignificant service is, in the words of Athletic Director Jimmy Allen, "an invaluable service to the athletic program." Another individual providing his invaluable service is Dr. Henry Rocco. Sacrificing numerous hours of time, Dr. Rocco provides sports teams with many of the needs of a physician. Bill Kale is another on the long list of volunteers. Everyone knows him as the announcer at basketball games; in addition, he takes care of some of the scorekeeping. The list of contributors continues with the Evans Foundation, the booster clubs, parents, friends, WCLT radio, etc. The list is too long to mention everyone. The community is invaluable in the success of any high school program. In Newark High's case they have done an exceptionally good job. The community name, in musical terms, is difficult, as every form of music is present; however, the 1982 Reveille staff feels that country music fits the best for after all the community is the country and the country which surrounds NHS is the community.

Nobody makes Fiberglas* but Owens-Corning

That's because "Fiberglas" is our trademark. . . spelled as one word, with a capital "F" and one "s." Everyone else has to spell it "fiber glass."

What difference does it make?

To us, all the difference in the world—it's the name we put on all of our products. . . from insulation and reinforcements to tub/shower units and BlocBond.

To you, it means getting products and service from the people with the most experience, the most know-how.

So if you want to be sure of what you're getting, look for Fiberglas* materials. One word, capital "F," one "s".

You see, anybody can make fiber glass.

But only Owens-Corning makes Fiberglas.*

"I'm going to play it again, Sam."

Play what?
That tune... it sounds like another solid gold smash to me.
Who is this?
It's me... the crown of sound... the king of swing.
Billy?
The one and only, baby. I just got this Tel-Touch™ phone that plays tunes. And your number is one I can really dig.
Really?
Listen, Samantha, I've got to hear it again. I'll hang up and call you right back.
Don't call me Samantha.
Okay, Sam.

Come on in or give us a call. We'll tell you about today's telephone. About the great new services—some of which you can perform yourself to save money. The beautiful new styles of decorator phones. And more.

Get to know us better, now.
